Please explain how these funds will be used to provide a public benefit:

Over the years, our offices realized that we were repeatedly serving the same clients for food, clothing, and showers. Knowing that some of these individuals wanted to move out of these cycles, but lacked the skills and support to do so, we began working with clients to help them break the cycles of poverty. We partner with many other nonprofit organizations and government agencies to create a network around the clients to help them on this difficult journey. This collaborative approach, helps clients know that they are not alone and that help is available to them if and when they need it. Giving people the tools and confidence they need to be self-sufficient benefits the entire community. These individuals have served as examples to their families and neighbors of how you can turn your life around. We've had the friends and relatives of past participants come through the programs after they see how their friend or loved one has thrived. Having fewer people in poverty and in need of ongoing assistance strengthens individuals and communities while easing the burden on resources that are often stretched too thin.
